AUKUM PIONEER DIED TUESDAY

Rites For Mrs. Wm. Burns Will Be Held Thursday From Chapel At Plymouth

The funeral services for Mrs. William J. Burns, a resident of the Auburn district more than fifty years, who died in Placerville on Tuesday, will be held Thursday afternoon at one o'clock from the Western mortuary chapel, at Plymouth.

The Rev. Planette, pastor of the Methodist church at Jackson, will officiate. Interment will be at the cemetery at Shendoah Valley, the vicinity where Mrs. Burns was born more than eighty-two years ago.

Mrs. Burns had been treating with a physician in Placerville for more than a year past and was enroute to the doctor's office when she collapsed while climbing the stairway in the Empire Theater building.

Friends called assistance and every effort was made to revive her but without avail.

The body was removed to Memory Chapel and thence to the Western mortuary at Plymouth.

Mrs. Burns was born Sarah Crain, the daughter of Andrew Jackson Crain and Mrs. Susan P. Bell Crain, who were early-day settlers in the Shendoah Valley. Her death leaves a surviving sister, Mrs. Frances Burkholder, of Lodi, as the last surviving member of that immediate family.

Senior Play Cast Named

Frances Byrnes Gets Title Role For "Try It With Alice"

With selection of the cast completed, rehearsals for the Senior Class play at the high school, to be presented Thursday evening, November 16th, were started during the week under the direction of Thomas Flynn.

The vehicle is "Try it With Alice," a rollicking three-act farce, and the role of Alice has been assigned to Frances Byrnes.

Other assignments in the cast are: Sam, to be played by Archie Hefner; Flora, by Mary Jane Newman; Harry, by Bob Woodward; Leo, by Don Chadwick; Mrs. Hamilton, by Betty Farrell; Mabel, by Lucille Crowell; Jack Carlton, by Harlan Hall; Arabella, by Penelope Risher; Billy, by Don Wright; Judge, by Leo Kearley and Betty, by Sylvia Johnson.

Taking no chances that illness may interfere with preparations for the play, Director Flynn has selected four understudies for the cast, who are Robert Dudley, Velma Lumsden, Henry West and Lucille Ebbert.

It will be noted that there are in the cast a number of the players who scored such a success in the junior class play last year. Although the current vehicle is a comedy, it is expected that "Try it With Alice," will record another excellent performance by these talented young players.

SHAKESPEARE'S LUNCHEON SET

Business Meeting Of Club Reveals Schedule For October Events

The regular business meeting of the Shakespeare Club, held on Tuesday at the clubhouse, was the occasion for the announcement of an interesting series of events for the club members during the current month.

Chief among the events scheduled, perhaps, is the annual luncheon of the club, to be held on the fourth Tuesday, October 24th, at the clubhouse. Mrs. T. A. Richards, past president of the northern district of the state women's club federation, will be the guest speaker and Mrs. F. E. George, of Willows, also will be a guest of the day.

The club met under the direction of Mrs. Robert Sinclair, president, and in respect to the memory of Mrs. Lulu Sumner, who for many years was an active member of the club, a moment of silent prayer was conducted. Mrs. Sumner passed on during the club's summer vacation.

The program for the October 10 meeting will feature a discussion of the propositions on the November election ballot, a review of the recent book, "Mr. Emmanuel," and of current events and recent advancements in medical science.

Announcements called attention to a bridge and whist party at the clubhouse on October 12, from one-thirty until three-thirty o'clock at which time tea and cakes will be served while a fashion show is in progress. The committee in charge has made arrangements to present the fashion show at 4 o'clock, with a special admission price for those who may wish to attend the fashion show, but who do not attend the card party.

Cosumnes Mine Planning To Increase Mill Capacity

Thirty-Three Men Employed At Grizzly Flat Property Formerly Held By Sciaroni Brothers; Middle End Was Old-Time Producer

The mill of the Cosumnes Mines, Inc., at Grizzly Flat, southeast of Placerville, is operating two shifts daily and treating fifty tons of ore, says a Sacramento report. J. E. Masters, vice president and manager, said the installation of a secondary crushing unit now on the property will step up production to about seventy five tons daily.

Thirty three men are on the payroll in the mining and milling operations. About a mile of workings have been opened, including the veins known as the Middle End, Bullard, Treat and one recently uncovered but as yet unnamed. Masters said the average of the four veins is about two and a half feet and in some places they widen to about fifteen feet.

The ore is mined through a tunnel and is taken from the development of new drifts or by storing. Backs on the Middle End vein, Masters said, are about 525 feet and in the Treat are 575 feet. The country rock is a granite-diorite.

Some lead and zinc is found in the concentrates, but not sufficient to result in penalization of the material which is sent to the smelter.

BARNETT GOES TO OAKLAND

Youth Cited For Death Of Brother Returned For Probation Hearing

Frank Barnett, 17, cited in juvenile court for manslaughter in connection with the death of his brother, Ray, will be returned to Oakland for a hearing as to whether he has violated the terms of the probation granted him following conviction there on robbery charges.

This was the order of Judge Geo. H. Thompson, sitting in juvenile court, Tuesday afternoon.

The youth had been arrested by county officers during the latter part of August after they had learned of the death about August 10 of Ray Barnett, at Oakland.

Investigation disclosed Ray had been shot in the arm at the ranch which the youths operated in the Pilot Hill district, and had been removed to Auburn for treatment and thence to his home at Oakland. Infection developed in the wound, and Ray died.

Although it was learned Frank had explained the shooting as an accident, he subsequently admitted under questioning that the two had quarreled immediately before the shooting and that he was angry with his brother at the time he shot him.

A court hearing last week revealed that Frank Barnett had been involved in trouble in Oakland and was on probation and also indicated that the youth's development along certain lines has been, for some reason, retarded. Judge Thompson asked the youth's father at that time if the young man had ever been examined by a psychiatrist.

Action on the matter, in which the court was to decide whether the youth should be dealt with in the local juvenile court, or in the local Superior Court, or returned to Oakland as a probation violator, was continued for further hearing until Tuesday of this week with the finding as above noted.

A suit for divorce was on file Wednesday morning in behalf of Marie O. Farris against Moody T. Farris, charging cruelty. The complaint, drawn by Attorney T. S. Marior, states the pair wed on April 8th, last, at Placerville, and have community property consisting of an automobile. The plaintiff asks for the custody of an unborn child and an adequate financial support.

F.R. URGED TO SEEK "PEACE"

Resolution Offered In Senate; Allies Gain By Soviet, Turkish Pacts

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Edward Johnson, D., Colo., introduced a resolution today requesting President Roosevelt to join with other neutrals in urging belligerents in Europe to enter into "an immediate armistice." The resolution was read to the senate and to galleries crowded for the neutrality debate. Then it was referred to the foreign relations committee for consideration.

Soviet Russian trade in the north and Turkish control of the Dardanelles Straits in the south appeared likely today to bolster the allied war against Germany.

With the Nazi peace offensive apparently doomed to failure, it generally was believed that Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag late this week would outline Germany's "final" bid for a settlement but would be more important as an indication of the extent to which he was prepared to resort to "total" war against Britain and France.

Expectations of a long struggle with special emphasis on the allied attempt to strangle Hitler's war machine by economic measures lent particular importance to the maneuvers of Russia and Turkey.

In the north, the Soviets were reported backing up their recent offer to carry on war time trade with Britain by negotiating for use of Scandinavian ships which would operate in sub-Arctic waters and thus evade the German navy's control.

Pheneger Admits Shasta Charge

Given Mercy On Forgery Conviction In Placerville, He Again Asks Probation

William Pheneger, 28, year old Fall River Mills resident, changed his plea to guilty in the superior court of Shasta County at Redding Tuesday as he was about to go on trial on a charge of assault to commit rape.

Pheneger asked for probation. The time for passing of judgment and sentence, as well as hearing the probation plea, was set for October 16th by Judge Albert F. Ross.

Pheneger is all ready a probationer following his conviction on forgery charges in this county last spring.

District Attorney Laurence W. Carr of Shasta County, stated in court that he is opposed to granting Pheneger probation.

The defendant was accused of attempting to attack Miss Katherine Cauman, 37, of Redding at Burney on the night of July 2nd. He gave himself up to a highway patrol officer on the following day after being sought for nearly twenty-four hours by a crowd of 100 persons.

Deputy Constable Ted Corson of Burney reported he came upon Pheneger in a lumber yard when the latter was beating Miss Cauman.

The woman was confined to the county hospital for a week afterward, suffering from severe bruises on her face and head.

George Turner, SRA Camp Enrollee, Died Tuesday

MC COY SCORES WARRANT LAW

School Superintendent, Off To Convention, Sees New Rule As "Nuisance"

County School Superintendent K. W. McCoy left Tuesday afternoon for Del Monte to attend the annual convention of County School Superintendents in California, opening Wednesday and closing Saturday.

Announcing his determination to return to his desk Monday, October 9, Superintendent McCoy said prior to his departure that he will endeavor to sponsor before the convention some action against the recently effective law requiring the superintendent's approval of school warrants before they are cashed.

The new law was among those passed by the last Legislature which became effective September 19th.

"It is an effort to safeguard school funds," McCoy said, "and as such is commendable; but it is a nuisance and in my view is hardly necessary."

"I spent most of Tuesday morning putting approval on school warrants."

"It is unfair to the school trustees, unfair to the people to whom the warrants are paid and certainly unfair to the school superintendent."

"Under the old system, the warrants were checked by the auditor, by the school superintendent and by the school district, anyway, but this new law makes it necessary that they be approved by the auditor and by the school superintendent before they are cashed."

"The intent of the law is commendable but in view of the hardship which it imposes upon school trustees, those to whom the warrants are paid, and the school superintendents, and in consideration of the fact that in the normal routine, school funds are triple-checked anyway, it seems to me it is a nuisance and should be changed."

COUGAR FOOTBALL GAME FOR SATURDAY OFF; PLAY MONDAY

Cougars will have to wait until Monday to play their second game of the football season.

The schedule, as lined out before the opening of the season last Saturday, in which the Cougars took a 6 to 0 win over Preston, called for a game on Saturday of this week against the Placer J. C. reserves.

Coach L. A. Brown, of the Cougars, was asked Wednesday if the game could be postponed until Monday and agreed to the new date. The postponement was asked by the Junior College, since they have a first string game this weekend and may need the reserves for that game.

ARMS EMBARGO DEBATED

Sen. Vandenberg Renews Attack On Administration Program For Repeal

By RONALD G. VAN TINE

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., renewing the attack on President Roosevelt's arms embargo repeal program, declared today if the United States becomes "an arsenal for one belligerent," it will become "a target for the other."

"In my opinion," he told the senate, "this is the road that may lead us to war and I will not voluntarily take it."

Vandenberg, a candidate for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination, followed Sen. Tom Connally, D., Tex., who spoke for the administration bill.

They disagreed squarely on the fundamental issue in this debate—how best to keep America out of the war.

Connally said that the danger lies not in embargo repeal but in the present law; that unless the law is changed the U. S. "will be brought to the brink of war, perhaps plunged into its dark and cruel depths." He argued that this is so because the present act permits American ships to go to belligerent ports with all manner of material, aside from arms, and these ships are open to attack.

He said that those such as Sen. William E. Borah, R., Idaho, who contend that repeal of the arms embargo would involve the country in war have built their argument upon a false premise. He said that they "seek to frighten the people into accepting their bold and baseless statement."

Debate opened Monday with Chairman Ken Pittman, D., Nev., of the foreign relations committee speaking in behalf of revision, and Sen. Borah presenting the case of a group of isolationists determined to fight it "from hell to breakfast." It was interrupted by a senate adjournment in respect to Sen. M. M. Logan, D., Ky., who died yesterday.

County Road Work Asked

Grizzly Flat Petitions To Supervisors Referred To Supervisor Chas. Green

The Board of Supervisors in session Tuesday received and referred to Supervisor Charles Green, of the Second District, two petitions asking for improvement of the road to Grizzly Flat from Youngs postoffice.

One petition bore the signatures of thirty residents of the Grizzly Flat vicinity and the other bore the signatures of thirty-four employees of the Cosumnes Mine, located at Grizzly Flat.

The petition on behalf of the residents declared a need for work on the road to insure the possibility of travel during the winter weather.

The second petition pointed out that the Cosumnes mine has a payroll of $4250 per month and that in the past years it has been necessary to close the mine for certain periods because it has been found impossible to get over the road in question during the winter months. Repair of the road, the petition indicates, will make continuous daily operation of the mine possible and insure continuing employment for its workers.

The petition by the residents of Grizzly Flat says in part:

"We do not ask that it (the road) be oiled or materially widened, or materially straightened, but that at least a single track of crushed rock be placed along the center."

shipping lanes a German submarine may be stalking a British freighter at sunset or at dawn. The submarine will shoot to the surface like a huge wounded whale and then disappear or the freighter will list suddenly and a few hours later sink. Two weeks ago the odds favored the submarine. Now they are said to favor the freighter.

Hundreds of tons of German U-boats have been destroyed in the first few weeks of the war. Likewise tons of British shipping was torpedoed but the toll has begun to diminish rapidly bearing out the British claims that the German submarine fleet had been badly crippled.

This is attributed to these factors.

1. While Britain was three years in effecting a convoy system in the last war she has placed it in immediate effect in the present conflict.

2. A new device adopted by the British navy for locating submarines under water.

Only vague communiques and carefully expurgated accounts of survivors indicate the ruthless sea war now in progress coupled with daily admissions of the new British losses and restrained announcements of success.

The submarine comes hurtling to the surface blowing air bubbles from its wounded sides. Sometimes they sink swiftly or if they float the conveying destroyer comes alongside and removes the German crew.

Up through the conning tower the crew tumbles and waves in surrender. Sometimes it is a last desperate effort to fool the enemy. In some cases British warships have been forced to ram the submarine to insure its surrender.

There had been no official admission of the amount of submarine tonnage captured but it is believed to be substantial. It is estimated that Germany had from 65 to 70 submarines at sea when the war began. This compared with only 28 at the beginning of the last war.

However, Germany now has no bases. Submarines are reported to be running out of fuel and ammunition. Finally the new British weapon for locating submarines is believed to have taken a far greater toll than in the last war.

of the Baltic Sea.

The Russians completed a deal with Norway for rental of Norwegian ships and made similar proposals to Sweden and Denmark, neither of which decided immediately whether to make the deal.

Such trade would be of great importance to the allies because it might cut into resources available to Germany and because of shortage of such materials as lumber in England. Many neutral ships in the Baltic have been torpedoed or searched for contraband in recent weeks by the Nazis.

The Soviets were interested vitally, too, in developments in the south east, where Turkey has proved to be a good friend in the past but a stubborn protector of her own interests in regard to neutralizing the Dardanelles—the route through which a sea attack might be made on Russia from the south.

Turkey wants to continue close relations with the Soviets but her interests in the Mediterranean are best served by cooperation with the British and French and against the Italian expansion.

Thus, as long as the allied powers are not at war with Soviet Russia, the Turks apparently hope to work with both eastern and western extremes. All Russia is interested in, they point out, is protection against an attack through the Dardanelles. There is no indication that the allies would make such an attack.

"THIRTY THURSDAY" AND THE PRESS OF CALIFORNIA

By LEONE BAXTER

California Feature Service)
 After the fashion of newspaper editors—who, to accomplish their two-fold job of reporting the news and analyzing it editorially, have to know a good deal more about public questions than the common run of us—virtually every editor in California has burned the midnight oil—studying 30-Thursday. And virtually every editor has recorded his strong opposition to it.

Promoters of the plan retallated first with shafts hurled at a "bought and paid for" press, "the tools of big business," in thousands of speeches, dozens of issues of their own newspaper, and millions of pieces of printed literature.

Lately, the campaign against the California newspapers has started in earnest, to throttle individual editorial opinion.
 Your home town editor, if he's been bold enough to take a stand against "Ham and Eggs," may be among those who have felt the screws tighten down. If so, he's been warned his subscription list will be reduced by the exact number of "Ham and Eggs" members it includes, or he's been subject to a new twist in intimidation—a "secondary boycott" against his chief source of revenue—his advertisers.

Wholesale gagging of the press is new in this country. It's strictly an import—a leaf from the pages of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

Whether it's successful or falls flat, depends as much as anything else on whether an editor's townspeople believe him to be a black-guard without a shred of integrity, as the "Ham and Eggs" promoters insist he is—or whether they have come to know him as a pretty human fellow who tries to do his part in the job of building the community.

There are 728 editors in California — 728 pretty straight thinking Americans, accustomed to fighting the battles of their own communities on their own editorial pages. Many already are taking the heat for saying what they honestly think, after studying the "Ham and Eggs" proposal. They oppose it for many reasons:

Because both President Roosevelt and Governor Olson, after study, have warned against the scheme.

Because labor leaders believe it overrides the right to strike and picket. (Sec. 2, Par. 3.)

Because it is based on "spending ourselves rich," and places a 100 per cent penalty on savings. (Sec. 6, Par. 3.)

Because it would close all WPA and PWA jobs, since the U. S. government matches dollars, not warrants.

FEAR Greatest Hazard in Study of Arithmetic

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
MOST trouble children have over arithmetic should never happen, since the bulk of it concerns such very simple matters as four plus nine, 15 minus six, and eight times seven. Even in the fifth and sixth grades these basic items are the most troublesome. Why? The learning has been retarded by unpleasant emotions, chiefly fear. The child has had to hurry. He has never learned these items with precision, and his drill, or practice, has been a repetition of mistakes as well as of correct responses.

Let me beg the teacher of the intermediate grades to check each child individually on the simple number facts in addition, subtraction, multiplication. If you can make him feel entirely relaxed and unafraid, you can soon ascertain the nature of any trouble he may have with these matters. In case he pauses or makes errors with these combinations, get him to tell you what went on in his mind as he tried to think of each answer. If you can make him feel wholly comfortable, you may discover that he has been counting the numbers out in his mind, than which there can be no more wasteful and distressing method.

If, instead, you hurry him and keep on having him go over and over these combinations in more tests, he is likely to make little or no gain in accuracy. Instead, he may become worse. And if he counts or makes mistakes, don't scold him. Don't make him feel he should be ashamed. Make it not a matter of blame at all. Just show him how to learn these items with efficiency. Write out the whole combination (including answers) of those he has trouble with, attacking only four or five at a sitting.

I wish parents would also do as I have advised the teacher. Remember, no show of irritation, no sign of rebuke, no suggestion of haste. The moment you feel the development of a disturbance at the pit of your stomach, walk away. You are not then fit to be in the presence of a child attempting to learn. Go to bed or walk around the block. Pray for poise, my fellow parent or teacher, if you would help the child escape the common tragedies of arithmetic. Some day all stop-watch teaching will be outlawed.

If your child has trouble in arithmetic, or in any other school subject, write me about him, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope. I might be able to suggest some ways of helping him.

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK (UP)—I doubt if there is a more disorderly mind in captivity than mine, but even it isn't disorderly enough to grasp the confusion that exists today in the middleweight boxing situation.

Here is bedlam with gloves on, if there ever was such a thing. Matters weren't helped a great deal by the goings-on at Madison Square Garden when Ceferino Garcia scored a technical knockout over Fred Apostoli, a reformed elevator operator who probably has had enough of the ups and downs in the ring and will soon be back at the business of calling "sixth floor" — children's underwear, garden hose, player pianos, women's budget shop and house furnishings.

Just what did Garcia win by stopping Apostoli in the seventh round? To answer that one you'd have to know what titles Apostoli wore when he entered the ring, and that is something no one seems to know. The Garden announcer called Garcia the champion of the world at the end of the fight. The radio announcers proclaimed him champion of the world, but only in California and New York, which makes about as much sense as calling Alf Landon president of the United States, but only in Maine and Vermont.

When the news of the Filipino's victory reaches Paris the International Boxing Federation will meet in solemn session in some bomb-proof shelter and call him champion of France, and Manila, of course, will throw up a ferocious looking statue in his honor and hail him as the universal conqueror.

Although he is champion in New York and California as a result of Apostoli being recognized as the middleweight titleholder by the boxing commissions of these two states, and in France because he once knocked out Marcel Thil, former champ of the Champs Elysee, it wouldn't take Garcia more than an hour to get in a state where he is considered just another 160-pounder and no champion.

There are 46 states whose boxing is governed by the National Boxing Association and none of them will recognize his new title. Al Hostak of Seattle, Washington, is their champion and even if he doesn't come out from behind those Redwood trees for the next ten years they apparently are going to stick by him.

The whole mess started this way. At the start of 1938, Freddie Steele was generally considered the middleweight champion. In January of that year, Apostoli knocked him out, but wasn't given the title because it was an over-the-weight match. In July of the same year, Steele suddenly defended his title against Mr. Hostak, a fellow-townsmen, and was knocked out in the first round. The N. B. A. then climbed on the Hostak bandwagon but the New York and California commissions refused to do this on the grounds that the bout was scheduled for only ten rounds in the first place, and in the second, Apostoli, and not Hostak, deserved the title shot.

To make things really complicated the New York board said it would recognize the winner of the Young Corbett III and Apostoli bout as the champion. Apostoli flattened Corbett last November. In the meantime, a fat number named Solly Kreiger had decided Hostak in 15 rounds but the New York sultans wouldn't give him a look in at the title, even though he came from Brooklyn.

Before this could worry them very much, however, Hostak knocked out Kreiger, who quit the ring and then started making a good, honest living as a bookie. Steele retired and efforts were made to get Hostak and Apostoli together, but their managers don't like one another and wouldn't talk business. Besides, so the story goes, Hostak's manager, one Druxman, is also a promoter in Seattle and doesn't care to expose his chief meal ticket and gate attraction to any undue danger.

My suggestion for the settling of the tangle is to assemble all able-bodied persons weighing between 145 and 160 pounds and play a game of genie-meeny-miny-mo, the winner be given the title. But only on the condition that he promises never to defend it.

ATLANTA MAY BE GLAD WHEN "IT" HAS GONE, EITHER WITH OR WITHOUT THE WIND; GEORGIA CAPITAL IN A DITHER

By JAMES W. CAMPBELL

ATLANTA, Ga., (UP)—When Margaret Mitchell wrote "Gone With the Wind," she reaped a large sum. When Hollywood announced that the World premiere of the film version of the Civil War story would be held in her home town, she reaped a series of headaches.

Miss Mitchell is thinking about having her telephone taken out, her doorbell removed and placing two vicious dogs in front of her home behind a fence of charged wire.

No sooner did news reach Atlanta that the first showing of the picture would be here than her worries began. Every time some local enterpriser thinks of a possible way to cash in on the thousands of visitors to Atlanta, he calls her to approve the ideas.

But here's the chief-bell-ringer: pass hunters! Virtually every resident of Georgia has a relative who defended Atlanta against the invading Union Army, and all believe they should see the moving picture without cost.

Ranking second to the pass seekers is the huge group wanting to know when the premiere will be held, will Clark Gable be here, will Vivien Leigh be present, what stars are coming, and scores of other questions.

The premiere is scheduled to be held late in the fall, but exactly when hasn't been established. As for the pass hunters, it appears that they are out of luck for the time being. Nobody knows just where the Annie Oakleys are coming from, and it appears that no one will be informed until the premiere is held.

Theater owners are getting their share of the calls, too. Members of historical societies who declare their parents, grandparents, uncles, great-uncles, cousins, second cousins and more distant relatives were among those who raised guns against the Yankees are bombarding managers of the theaters, film exchange officials and even the ushers.

If "Gone With the Wind" isn't a financial success for the producers, it won't be because the film hasn't had enough publicity. For two years, maybe longer, few days have passed that nearly every newspaper in Dixie hasn't carried some sort of story about it.

So many protests have been raised by both South and North alike that every foot of the celluloid is likely to make somebody angry.

The biggest controversy, of course, the annual convention of the Grange will be held at Chico, Butte County, Oct. 17-20.

Rustlers with a truck stole eight valuable hogs from A. Rominger, Zamora, Yolo County.

Spending her childhood in the Shenandoah Valley, Sarah Crain was married on February 6th, 1888, at the home of her parents, to William Burns, and the couple moved immediately to their home in the Aukum district of this county where they had made their home continuously since their wedding.

Mrs. Burns won many life-long friends who admired her for her many womanly traits of character, her usually cheerful disposition and her neighborly kindness and interest in the welfare of those about her.

Immediate surviving relatives are her husband and her sister.

In addition, she is survived by a number of nieces and nephews and other more distant relatives, all of whom joined with the couple on February 6th, 1938, in remembrance of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Cosumnes Mine Planning To Increase Mill Capacity

by means of blankets.

Old timers in that section say Hardy Melton took out several hundred thousand dollars in the seventies, but later put the entire amount back in the property. Joseph Lyon, grandfather of District Attorney Henry S. Lyon of this county also worked the Bullard ledges many years ago.

The property lay more or less dormant until in 1925 the Sciaroni Brothers of Grizzly Flat purchased part of it at a tax sale and erected a stamp mill. Several other pieces have been added until now the holdings of the Cosumnes Company amount to about 620 acres, with approximately two miles of ledge on the property.

In 1938 Ed. S. Miller held a lease on the property, which was taken over by the present operators.

Officers of the company include: Ralph Penn, president; J. E. Masters, vice-president and manager; Charles G. Ranney, secretary.

Elevation at the mill is approximately 3850 feet.

Masters said the company plans for the installation of the secondary crusher, which, by crushing the material to a greater fineness, will increase capacity about twenty five to thirty tons daily.

NEVADA TRUCKS ARE PERMITTED TO OPERATE WITHOUT FEE PAYMENT, MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT RULES

SACRAMENTO — Trucks and other vehicles bearing Nevada license registration plates will be permitted to operate on California highways without payment of fees. Oregon commercial vehicles and those used by Oregon residents gainfully employed in California will be required to register and pay California registration and weight fees. Interstate commerce registered vehicles from these states are exempted.

This announcement was made by Director of Motor Vehicles, Howard R. Philbrick, following receipt of opinions from the attorney general concerning the rights of California to extend reciprocal privileges to vehicles bearing registration plates of other states when those states extend similar reciprocal privileges to California registered vehicles.

Registration in no way applies to privately owned motor vehicles operated across state lines by visiting residents or other states, these only being required to apply for visitor's permits given without cost.

A study is being contemplated of the reciprocal privileges extended by other states and as soon as any legal obstacles have been considered by the attorney general's office and opinions rendered, announcement will be made clarifying the situation existing between California and a number of other states.

"The opinions by the Attorney General clarify situations that have been causing considerable difficulty and the loss of fees to California," said Director Philbrick. "The status of cars bearing Nevada and Oregon licenses is now clear, and I have directed all divisions of the department of motor vehicles to take prompt action."

"The matter of a reciprocal agreement, as permitted by Section 217 of the California Vehicle Code, is now being studied insofar as it relates to other states. As promptly as these issues are determined, we shall take prompt action to remove any possible friction due to misunderstanding between ourselves and our sister states.

"We are seeking from other states the same privileges which we are glad to extend when they operate their commercial vehicles in California within the reciprocal status of the California Vehicle Code."

TODAY'S PROFILE

BY UNITED PRESS

Piloting the Cincinnati Reds in their pennant drive was an arduous task beset with worries, but William Boyd McKechnie found consolation in reading about a man who had a tougher and longer job—Abraham Lincoln.

The Reds' manager is not exactly a student of Lincoln, it's just a hobby with him. The reason he has been reading about Lincoln these past few weeks, Bill (The Deacon) says is because "it takes my mind off business." And just to emphasize this point, he declares:

"Don't make any mistake about this — it's hard work managing a ball club, and Lincoln helps me to rest up."

Managing a ball club has been McKechnie's business for nearly 20 years. It began in 1922 when he was promoted from coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates to manager. He remained in that post until 1926, then moved on to St. Louis where he coached the Cardinals for a year. He rose to manage the club and lead it to a National pennant in 1928 but the Cards lost four straight games to the Yankees in the World Series and McKechnie moved on to Rochester, a farm unit. It was his second "demotion" but he said nothing. Then late in July, 1929, the Cardinals bosses recalled him. It was a full vindication for McKechnie.

When 1930 rolled around McKechnie decided he didn't care for the possibility of future shuffling back and forth in the St. Louis organization. He declined to sign a contract and passed up an offer to manage the Cincinnati Reds in that year. Instead, he chose the Boston Bees and signed a four-year contract to manage what then was the weakest team in the National League.

McKechnie remained with Boston for seven years but he never could pilot the Bees beyond fourth place. In 1937, Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds, offered McKechnie a two-year contract at $25,000 a year, plus an attractive bonus proposition. He accepted.

The Reds' pilot is 52 years old, a native of Wilkesburg, Pa., and a product of the Pennsylvania-Ohio-Maryland League. He began playing professional ball with Washington, Pa., in 1906. He was a third baseman and was considered a strong defensive player but weak at bat.

McKechnie's success as a manager probably is due in a large measure to his patience, his ability to develop young players and his technique in building outstanding defensive teams.

SIGN 30 YEARS OLD

MARICOPA—One of the country's oldest signs giving directions to motorists still stands and is enforced by Police Chief James Cosens. The sign reads: "Maricopa City Limits, Close Muffler." It was erected 30 years ago, probably to prevent the startling of horses and causing them to run away.

FORUM SERIES OPENS ON TUESDAY; CONCERT PLEASES PATRONS

Following an unusually successful opening for the annual music series in Placerville on Tuesday night, residents of the community are looking forward to the first event in the forum series, to be held at the Shakespeare clubhouse on Tuesday evening, October 10.

The speaker on this occasion will be Baldwin M. Woods, professor of mechanical engineering at the University at Berkeley.

The first of the series of three events in the music series featured Catherine Rue, contralto, was held at the clubhouse Tuesday night and attracted a large audience whose interest in the support of the music series as a community event was rewarded with a most gratifying program, that she was compelled to offer two encores.

Other events in the music series are scheduled for November 7 and December 5. In November, the California Nightingales will appear in costume. The December date will feature the Pro Musica string quartet.

Virgil Avansino was a caller from the Pleasant Valley section on Wednesday.

and Mrs. Albert Toombs is alternate to the Tri-County Convention at Roseville October 13th. Mrs. Harriett Amstaden, tri-county chairman for historic landmarks, also will attend the meeting at which the state chairman for art will be the guest speaker.

The garden section, of which Mrs. S. M. Speers is chairman, announced plans for a flower exchange on October 17th. Members are planning to exchange slips, bulbs or plants at this meeting.

Following the annual luncheon on October 24 the club events of the month will conclude on October 31 with a bridge and whist party from which the proceeds will go to present a Christmas party later in the year. Mrs. Don Hoffman, who is in charge, has asked each member to dress a doll which will be sold at the card party.

Among other business of the Tuesday meeting, Mrs. M. P. Bennett spoke with reference to the Historical Society museum and the desire of the society that as many relics as possible be displayed, either by gift or loan, at the earliest possible date.
